

Addressing AOD Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Workers' needs

Results from a national survey: Implications and next steps

Webinar

Australian Indigenous HealthInfoNet Alcohol and other Drugs Knowledge Centre and the National Centre for Education and Training on Addiction (NCETA) invite you to attend a free webinar on Wednesday 16th March 9am - 10 am (WST) where key findings from Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Alcohol and other Drug (AOD) workers who participated in a national AOD workforce survey will be presented, along with discussion on next steps for the sector. We would like your input into the q&a session.

- The session will be facilitated by Prof Neil Drew, Director of the Australian Indigenous HealthInfoNet.
- Key findings from the report will be presented by Dr Alice McEntee, report co-author and Research Fellow at NCETA.
- Dr Jocelyn Jones (a Noongar woman with Wadjuk, Ballardong and Palyku connections to the land in Western Australia (WA) and a Senior Research Fellow and Program Leader at the National Drug Research Institute (NDRI) will provide further insight on what these findings mean to Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander workers in the AOD sector.

To register for the webinar, please email alice.mcentee@flinders.edu.au by Friday 11th March.

Professor Neil Drew

Dr Alice McEntee

Dr Jocelyn Jones
